LASKER LOOKS LIKE A WINNER.

& BIG CROWD WATCHES THE CHESS GAME CAUTIOUS MOVES BY THE EXPERTS-STEINITZ GETS THE WORST OF

THE EXCHANGES. When Steinitz and Lasker sat down to play the eighth game of the championship chess match in rowd of spectators such as has been rarely seen in this city on any similar occasion, and it was with difficulty that one could follow the game on the board on which the champions were engaged. Much to the astonishment of these pres-ent, Lasker adopted the French Defence and a variation which gave his a iversary no chance of selecting a combination, namely, P-Ks, which Steinitz has made a specialty.

The game had a most simple appearance right through the opening, and it appeared as if both players wanted to be on the safe side, and as if we did not care to venture anything, but simply to play for the best development of their pieces A position. Sometimes Steinltz, at other times Lasker, would make an aggressive movement, but defence was always correct, and as a rule the attacking pieces had to be withdrawn from the breatening positions they occupied before.

It was a regular seesaw affair for about thirty noves, and later on pieces were exchanged freely. side, and during the subsequent moves this side of the heard became the buttlefield.

Here Black got the best of the bargain, as White had to give up a piece for two pawns, while Lasker esemed to have a winning continuation with 46 . . R-R & Whether he made this move or not cana said, as he had to scal this move.

The game will be resumed to-day at 3 o'clock Appended is the score of the game up to the adnment last night.

RHODE ISLAND'S VOICE FOR PROTECTION.

THE FIRST NEW-ENGLAND VERDICT.

From The Boston Journal.

The first New-England verdict on the Wilson bill rings out with no uncertain significance. Rhode Island, a typical New-England State, repudiates this economic absurdity with an emphasis which will penetrate the shut and barred Senate Committee rooms where the arrogant Bourbon triumvirate refused hearings to Northern wage-earners.

A PLEASING DUTY WELL PERFORMED. m The Hartford Courant.

Yesterday it was Rhode Island's turn to whack the Democratic party, and a very satisfactory vim and vigor Rhode Island out into the performance of that pleasing duty. For particulars see our news columns. No Texas-Arkansas tariffs for Little Rhody!

NO DOUBT ABOUT NOVEMBER.

From The Commercial Advertiser.

Under any circumstances this extraordinary reversal of conditions in Rhode Island would be ominous to the party. Coming as it does in a long sequence of Democratic routs, it simply insures the utter collapse of the party in the general elections next November.

From The Utica Herald.

The result of the election is a most emphatic pro-test against tariff tinkering from the voters of a State largely dependent upon manufacturing in-dustries for its prosperity.

THE WORKINGMEN SAW THROUGH IT. om The Worcester Spy.

Little Rhody is not a large State, but she is crowded with industrial establishments, whose employes have suffered greatly since Mr. Cleveland was last inaugurated. These people were not to be deceived by the petity trickery and sham issues presented by the Democracy.

AN ANTI-DEMOCRATIC WAVE. From The Evening Post.

It would be difficult to find a Northern State in which a similar result would not be expected and recorded were an election to be held in it to-morrow. There is an anti-Democratic wave sweeping over the entire country, and its effects are feit in "reduced Democratic majorities," even in Texas. THE MOST EMPHATIC PROTEST POSSIBLE.

From The Newark Advertiser.

From The Newark Advertiser.

It is the most emphatic protest which "Little Rhody" could utter against the efforts of Congress to destroy American industries and cripple American workingmen. Few States have suffered so keenly from the industrial depression as Rhode Island. Few States have felt the threat of adverse tariff legislation so profoundly as that State.

JUDGE CALDWELL'S NOVEL SUGGESTION. Omaha, Neb., April 5.—In an informal talk with Mr. Dickinson, Judge Caldwell stated that it was essential that any grievances that the men might have should be heard and determined, but that have should be heard and determined, but that such matters took up too much of the time of the officers of the road, and asked him if it would not be a good idea to have a man on a system which employed so many men as the Union Pacific, whose sole duty it would be to hear and determine such differences and report his findings to his superiors for approval. Judge Caldwell suggested that Mr. Dickinson and the men agree upon some man for this purpose, and he would in all probability appoint him to that position. This plan, if it is put in practice, will be an isnovation in the railroad business.

believe that there were irregularities therein which might be pointed out.

The mention of "irregularities" seemed to grate terriby upon Mr. Lyon's sensibilities.

You have the advantage of me," he said, coldly, taking no notice of the doctor's request.

"My name is Hamilton Williams, sir," the doctor replied, and in answer to a further question from Mr. Lyon added that he lived in the IXIA Assembly District. "I think that I have a better right to the title than you, sir," returned the doctor. "I am not accustomed to receive respectable American citizens with my hat on."

The temperature of the committee-room began to go up rapidly, and another request to examine the rolls brought a plump refusal from Secretary Lyon. He gave no reason for the refusal, but instead began to bernte the visitor for "invading his office."

BURDETTE'S EXPERIENCE WITH COXEY

HE MAKES EAPTISTS LAUGH IN A LECT

VICE ON HOW TO BE HAPPY Robert J. Burdette's funny talk was the leading feature of the Baptist Social Union's meeting last right at the Hotel Savoy. For more than an hour the good Baptists listened and laughed as the humorist discussed in a way peculiar to himself. The Labor Question," and while he failed to make clear the true solution of the problem, he assured them that he once had it all explained to him, but that he had forgotten just how it was. He said he was with Coxey's army at Alliance, Ohio, a few days ago, and that he felt mighty sorry for those knights of the road.

"You see," said Mr. Eurdette, "these men want to go to Washington to accomplish reforms. They are nothing more than lobbyists. To be sure, they cannot ride in Pullman cars like the ordinary lobbyist, but when they finally get to Washington if they can accomplish reforms we will all throw up out hats for them. I don't care what kind of a reform they accomplish, so long as they stir up those great men in the Capitol to do something interesting. We are all laughing at Coxey and his men. One hundred years ago the people laughed at the same kind of men, who marched from all over France to Paris, but they soon ceased their smiles when the blood began to flow. Coxey and his men are in earnest, and we, too, may stop laughing. Man has a right to be discontented. Man has a rockly time of it, anyhow, and there is no reason why he should not show symptoms of being tried of everything in general and nothing in particular. I was once tired out from labor. I tried to cross a stream three times. The first time the bridge broke and I fell into the water and swam to the same shore I had started from. I tried it again the next day, and the same thing occurred. The third time I started to drive across the bridge, but the horses jumped over the side, taking me with them. I struck out for the right shore, but just then one of the horses kicked me in I lay there fog five days, and when I was finally taken out I found myself on the same side of the stream. I had started from, so I save the job up as a bad one and ceased laboring to get to the haven where I would be. Labor Rills many men, but nine-tenths of the people die from worry rather than from labor. There are just two days in the work! I don't worry about-yesterday and to-morrow. It gives one a little rest from worry, and if you will all follow my plan you will live long and be happy."

THE LAST OF THE SEIGNIORAGE BILL.

LET THE SILVER QUESTION REST. From The Philadelphia Press. For practical purposes, the silver question in this country will now enjoy a season of rest, considered as a live issue.

THE END OF IT FOR THIS CONGRESS. From The Eoston Post. The vote on the vetoed Biand bill in the House yesterday marks the end of silver legislation in this Congress. It is a final demonstration of the fact that sound money is stronger in this Government than cheap dollars.

A LOST CAUSE. From The Albany Argus.

From The Albany Artises.

Congressman Bland should appreciate that the commercial element of the whole country is not in favor of his measure. He has done the best he could for his cause, but it is a lost cause. The bringing up again of the subject will simply add to the existing feeling. THE REAL FRIENDS OF SOUND MONEY.

From The Mail and Express. From The Mail and Express.

The House yesterday sustained the President's veto of the Bland bill. The result was due entirely to the Republicans. They refrained from voting on the first roll-cail, and that showed sufficient votes in favor of overriding the veto to send the bill to the Senate. Then the Republicans voted, and killed the measure. This fact shows on which side the friends of sound money are.

DOESN'T KNOW WHEN HE HAS ENOUGH. From The Pittsburg Dispatch. The fate of the Seigniorage bill in the House would discourage any one but its author. Mr. Bland is too much of a crank on the silver question, however, to know when he has had enough. OBITUARY.

MAJOR GEORGE CHORPENNING.

Major George Chorpenning, who died in the New-York Hospital on Tuesday, was born in Somerset, Penn., on June 1, 1829. He was the first man to carry the United States mails across the continent. In the spring of 1850 he went to California. In the following year he established a mail business from Sacramento to Salt Lake City. The mails were carried on horseback, and the route was gone over once a month. It was a hard journey the Sierra Nevada Mountains, and sixteen days was considered good time. Chorpenning had a partner, Captain Woodward, of Indiana County, Penn. The first trip the captain made he was killed by In-dians. From that time Chorpenning had the con-tract alone.

dans. From that time Chorpenning had the contract alone.

He later took a coach contract from the Missouri River to Placerville, Cal. This was the road over which Horace Greeley was driven by Hank Monek in one of Chorpenning's coaches. Chorpenning built post stations at every twenty miles for relays of horses. He organized the 1st and 2d Maryland Infautry in 1831, at the personal request of President Lincoln. He was made major in the 1st Regiment and colonel in the 2d. For many years he had been prosecuting a claim against the Government on mail contracts amounting to $430,000.

Two sons and two daughters, Mrs. F. A. McGee, of California; Frank C. Chorpenning, of Berlin, Penn., and George W. Chorpenning and Mrs. Johnston, both of this city, survive him. The burial took place yesterday afternoon in the cemetery of the Evergreens.

Washington, April 5.-Father James A. Walter, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, and the best-known dergyman in Washington, dropped dead at 3:30 clock this afternoon. For some months Father Walter had been suffering from an attack of grip and throat trouble, and about a week ago was compelled to take to his bed. He partially recovered and gained strength enough to attend to his duties. During the afternoon he entertained Bishop Chappell, formerly pastor of St. Matthew's Church, in this city, but now Bishop of the Santa Fe Diocese, and seemed to be well and cheerful. Shortly after the bishop left the pastoral residence Father Waster prepared to go on a sick visit, when dizziness seized him, and, calling to a servant, dropped in a chair. Father McCae, the assistant pastor of the church, was in an adjoining room. A glance convinced him that his superior was about to expire, and he hastily administered the last sacraments of the Church.

Father Walter was born in Baltimore in 1828. He attended Mrs. Surratt during her trial and was on the seaffold when she was hanged. and throat trouble, and about a week ago was com-

DR. CHARLES COREY.

Dr. Charles Corey, a well-known Brooklyn phy-Sician and an expert in insanity, died suddenly on Wednesday evening, at his home, No. 23 South Oxfordest, Brooklyn. His death was due to pneumonia. Dr. Corey was sixty-four years old and had practised his profession in Brooklyn for more than thirty years. He had a large general practice and was a specialist in all forms of mental and nervous diseases. His services were in great demand as an expert in court cases, where competent testimony in regard to insanity was needed. At various times he was attached to the consulting staffs of insane asyluma in different parts of the State. He made especial researches in mental pathology, and was eminent in his branch of the medical profession. Dr. Corey left a wife and a cian and an expert in insanity, died suddenly on cal profession. GLANCES HERE AND THERE.

The keen advertiser knows the value of getting people to notice an advertisement. A busy man does a thousand which comes in his mail. He sees what it is only, and tosses it into a waste-basket. A New-York firm has taken up a good idea, so far as catching the eye is concerned. It sends through the nmil to desirable customers what looks on the outside objectionable red tape of courts. The average man tritonal. The railway and the street-cars are, I think, vasity superior to those in this part of the world, as every woman there, no matter how lowly, has a special parter to assist her on and off the cars, and she is in no danger of losing part of her dress or dislocating her shoulder. No one is allowed to trot a horse over street crossings, and in no municipality can one drive after sunser without carriage lamps.

In closing, Miss Windeyer again referred to sufferso, and favored the admittance of women as being a great aid to the future improvement of the Government, and suid: "Whatever may be the shade of our political opinions, we aid stand on a common platform—the good of our Government."

Will until the tape to see how the rest of the advertising idea is carried out. On looking over this paper you find that you are summoned to such and such a place to examine the firm's goods, mentioned such a place to examine the firm's goods, mentioned such a place to examine the firm's goods, mentioned such a place to examine the firm's goods, mentioned such a place to examine the firm's goods, mentioned such a place to examine the firm's goods, mentioned such a place to examine the firm's goods, mentioned such a place to examine the firm's goods, mentioned such a place to examine the firm's goods, mentioned such a place to examine the firm's goods, mentioned such a place to examine the firm's goods, mentioned such a place to examine the firm's goods, mentioned such a place to examine the firm's goods, mentioned such a place to examine the firm's goods, mentioned such a place to examine the firm's goods, mentioned such a place to examine the firm's goods, mentioned such a place to examine the firm's goods, mentioned such a place to examine the firm's goods, mentioned such a place to examine the firm's goods, mentioned such a place to examine the firm's goods, mentioned such a place to examine the firm's goods, mentioned such a place to examine the firm's goods, mentioned such a place to examine the firm's good and the

A good-natured New-Yorker, who does not care anything about office for himself, but who is always willing to help a friend, went to Washington the other day to "put in a good word" with son of his powerful friends there for a man who wants something, if it is only a consular agency at the North Pole. He came back with a gloomy report. "You'd better join Coxey's army as a private," he said. "You'll get more out of it. I never saw such a hungry crowd of my fellow-Democrats before. They are simply ravenous for office."

to a fairly well-known member of a farce-comedy company had this proposition made to him by the comic star: "Til tell you what I'll do. I'll sing your cong every night to advertise it, give it a good show and push it well, if you have my picture and name printed on every copy of the song which is sold, and give me one-third of the profits."

R. F. Hamilton, popularly known as "Tody" Hamilton, is an example of bow a nickname can be a grotesque misfit. It sounds like that disagreeie word "toady." No toady was ever popular, while Hamilton, who, as everybody knows who knows anything about circuses, is the press agent of Barnum & Balley's "great moral show," has so many friends in this country that he could get off a train in any State in the Union and muster an army of followers that would make the Russian army of followers that would make the Russian standing army look like a little band of strolling players. Hamilton once started to walk from Twenty-third-st. to Twenty-eighth-st. with the idea of asking what friends he should meet to go to luncheon with him. At Twenty-fifth-st. and Broadway his following was dispersed by the police on the ground that it was obstructing the street and that the procession had no permit from the Mayor to parade. When the police sergeant discovered whose band it was he tore his hair and resigned from the force—at least that's what all Hamilton's friends say.

MR. CROKER MAY DELAY HIS RETURN. Last telegraphic accounts of Richard Croker, New-York's absent millionaire-boss, represent him as at Sait Lake City vesterday, approaching this city by easy stages. His Tammany Hall friends say that they look for him the last of this or the first of next week, though there are rumors that he is not to return until after the Legislature has adjourned.
